Who is SSELP School Direct?

We provide School Direct teacher training in partnership with Sheffield Hallam University to ensure future generations of teachers reach their full potential and become the best practitioners they can be.

The vast majority of the course is based in school, working with teachers and children, 'learning on the job'. From day one, you will hit the ground running with school experience. You'll become part of the staff team in your host school and benefit from all the expertise and in house training available. You will also benefit from high quality input from SHU.

Sheffield South East Learning Partnership (SSELP) aims to provide outstanding primary and early years teacher training leading to long term career prospects within one of our schools. Teaching in a SSELP school will enable you to make a huge difference to the life chances of the children you teach.
